Re: Torvane Industrial Group, Inc. —Response to Audit Inquiry —Fiscal Year Ended September 30, 2013 —DRAFT

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen:

This responds to your letter of October 10, 2013, written at the request of Torvane Industrial Group, Inc. (the "Company"). Subject to the qualifications stated below, we advise as follows with respect to matters as to which this firm has been engaged and to which it has devoted substantive attention on behalf of the Company since October 1, 2012.

1. Torvane Industrial Group, Inc. v. Ridgeline Constructors, Inc., American Arbitration Association, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The Company asserts claims for installation defects and delay arising from the Kelling Station Unit 2 expansion project; the respondent has counterclaimed on a specification-deficiency theory. Evidentiary hearings concluded March 22, 2013; post-hearing briefs were submitted May 20, 2013; the matter is before the panel for decision. The Company is prosecuting the claims vigorously. We believe the Company's claims to be meritorious and the counterclaim to be without substantial merit; because the matter awaits decision, we express no view as to the amount or range of any recovery.

2. [DRAFT NOTE —FOR MS. TENNIEL'S SPECIFIC REVIEW] Potential warranty claim —Brandt Thermal Systems, Inc. In 2011 the firm analyzed a potential warranty claim by the Company against Brandt Thermal Systems, Inc., supplier of the Unit 2 regenerative thermal oxidizer, relating to unmet performance guarantees. [Carried over from the firm's 2011 project workup. Confirm whether this item belongs in the firm's response —drafter was not on the client calls in which the 2011 scope discussions concluded. If the Company treats this as an unasserted claim, it is addressed in the Company's own representations to the auditors rather than in this firm's response, unless the Company has specifically identified it to us for that purpose.]

3. Fees. [Accounting to insert unpaid balance as of effective date.]

This response is limited by, and made in accordance with, the ABA Statement of Policy Regarding Lawyers' Responses to Auditors' Requests for Information (December 1975); without limiting that Statement, we have not undertaken to reaffirm or update this response after its effective date.

Very truly yours,
